FIRE RECORD.

Firemen and Policemen Severely Attempt Made to Kill the MANCHISTER, N. B., Oct 2 A fire broke out in the Wagner Block, next east of Windsor Hotel, Munchester street, at an early hour this morning, and practically wrecked the saloon of George Connor, besides extensive damage to the interior of the block. Three policemen and four firemen were partly up the front stairway when they were met by a terrific burst of flatic and smoke, which burled them headlong out into the street. All were severily burned about the hands and face and suffered intense pain. The injuries of Officers Hutchins and Callaghan, and driver Blenus, of Penacook Hose Company were especially serious.

Aroostook
During the last hunt of the Preeque late Club, save the Aroostook Nar-Headle, one of our clergy men was among those who suffied forth into the sylvan solitides of Chapman in quest of game All things considered, a certain haystack seemed to be the most eligible the-up for the ministerial nag, and his master at tached him to it. Then the reverend gentleman shouldered his gan and spent the day scouring the woods in search of game. The horse revalued patiently at the stock, quietly and steadily monehing hay, and vigorously switching flies Chapman haystacks are small, and authister's horse has a sharp uppetite and lots of storage room for fodder, and the result was that when his master returned he found his horse pedded out to very rotund proportions, about haif the haystack devoured, and he slop found the irate proprietor of the stack watting for him start helood in his cyce? An interesting dispute is now going on between certain members of the Peary expedition and the wife of its commander. The men, or at least one of them who professes to speak for others, claim that Peary did not use them right, that they were kept on boiled seal meat flavored with coal oil reindeer meat and comment much on which Peary himself spripkled sugar with a sparing hund, and were sent out on sledge journeys with insufficient notice. In winds up his remarks with the declaration "No Arotic expedition can ever succeed which these a woman along to hamper it." Mrs. Peary on the other hand, declares that her husband was ever-serupulous in his treatment of the mon, that they had to eat just what he had ond that the grumbler's lameness which he claims was due to harsh treatment, was really caused by infantile paralysis Sia furthermore says that she's going back after Mr. Peary next summer. As to ittle Miss Marie Ahmighito, who is now holding court in Washington, D. C., the unanimous opinion is that she is an unqualified success.

Kitchen Conveniences The kitchen floor is everybody's bug ear, whether it be of tile or plain pinbeards that have not even the merit of being narrow, and the neat housewife is careful about letting spois get on it in any case. She covers all frying foods with a perforated tin party pan inverted over the skillet or Stotch kettle. Of course, you can have perforated covers made, but these pans are just as good, and when they turn dark beyond supolio redemption it does not hurt one a concelence to throw them away for they cost but a nickel. The perporations let out the steam, but not the pupping grease, and so things are not steam scalded as when a plain pot cover is used. And then the poil-hed stove is protected from soil, and all the household is spared the odor and smoke of burning grease, and so the cook herself spared soiled clothes. Indeed a woman cannot realize how grease soils until she has cooked in a linen lawn apron, upon which each ting dot soon spreads out and shows itself plaints.

Confessing the Truth. Whenever Republican papers call at tention to the election methods in the bouth, the doughface editors of the North declare that they are "waiving the bloody shirt" and are samply keeping alive sectional prejudices. The doughthee alway insists that the elections in the South are as open and fair as in any other section of the country in this nnection we reprint a desputch sent to the New York Sun by its Atlanta, Ga., correspondent and would be pleased to have the doughface editors reconcile the damaging confession contained therein with their vociferous repudiation of the charges of fraud in Southern elections with their vocaterous reponness of the charges of fraud in Southern elections:

ATEANTA, Sept. 24—The Domocrate who went into the national canvass two years ago with a whoop and burrah, are having all they can wag with, at present date, to apologize for the President and his cackoo Congress before the people. While it is a fact that the final count after State and National elections in the South always clears away their appurent difficulties, and returns their candidates to the National Congress, still they are having more trouble in hiding their tracks than ever before. About a month ago the Populist party made a public demand for a division of hallot box managers, and the chairman of the Democratic State Committee refused to divide. Thereupon one of the members of his own committee pulled out and wrote a letter, giving the reasons why. This is hurting and the ladvantage to the opposition is mishifest.

Like Kolb's canvass in Alabama two years ago, the Populists would be successful but for the count in the "Unick" years ago, the Populists would be suc-cessful but for the count in the \"black belt" counties; for there is general un-rest and dissatisfaction all over the State; This franchilent count is doing more to damage the flauncial presentity of the State than all other extraneous causes for depression and decay. The problem is how can this combination be defeated, when they are able to forbud any interference in the count and hold the returns in their own grasp I absolute to publication about the addressed "Filter of whigh and Courter "

Doe, and learns from a study of John's haunts in this city that he was last heard from at San Francisco, it at oons sends a letter of inquiry to the Associated Charities of the latter place. If John is still at San Francisco and following his usual mode of life, the Associated Charities is pretty sure to find him. But suppose the report from San Francisco is that John was last seen on board a steamship working his passage to Tasmanh.

That sounds hopeless enough but there is a charity organization at Hobart Town, Tasmania, and the chances are that if a man of John Doe's status should go to Tasmania Hobart Town, as the capital and largest city, would be his abiding place. Were John there, the locks society would doubtless find him and report the discovery to the New York society. Thence the report would reach Liverpool, and if John's inquiring friends were really anx jous for his presence and he were willing to return home the Liverpool society would see him safely through the remain der of his journey round the world. The Charity Organization society may queer have pursoed John Doe into Australia, but it could do tit if it would for it is in friendly relations with like societies all over the civilized world. It has such relations with more than 100 societies in the United States and Canada and with many others in the British isless France, Germany Holland, Italy, Switzerland, Russia Austria Hungar, Greece There are more than 10 and hand and There are more than 10 and hand and There are more than 10 and hand and more than a dozen the lives and nore than a dozen the lives and nore than a dozen to I washe and metralia. Priceless Bits That Have Survived All Other Art Forms.
In The Century Russell Sturges describes

In The Centur, Russell Sturges desorbes the famous Coleman collection of an tique glass, a collection made by an American artist in Rome and one of the richest for its kind in the world Mr Sturges says.

The world of the Mediterranum sea, 18 centuries ago was rich in works of art and dechration beyond our experience and beyond pur flights of imagination. It is an effort which few of us can make with species to plettere the wealth in beautiful art of a greateity of the empire. The marbles have been busteed to lime the bionzes have been metted into gros sons or their equivalent, the stuccos have counded from the walls, the paintings have gone down with their walls to rain, the shattered pottery has been used in fill hig and granding and the remaining fragments are of no value except maining fragments are of no value except for an inscription or an impressed name-mere potsherds, with now and then a merap of antiquarian interest.
The shattered glass alone contains in

These broken bits point to a general use of vessels of decorative glass used as we use percelain for the finer velocits of table and tollet, and also a great abundance of objects of pure ornament of wall linings and liour coverings made of the same spleadil material. No other substances is like that beautiful in itself, he as every ease no.

[Fragments of glass have often the value that fragments of plays have often the value that fragments of pottery somethines have—the partial figure, the incomplete pattern on the surface—and they have also what no pottery and no other artificial substance has—the beauty we generally think of as peculiar to natural stones to agates and to juspers. As a collector fills his canime, which has, as the happens, a head a embrecious stones with here and there a piece which has, as the happens, a brad or a piece of a brad cavered upon it, we the enthusias tie vitreologist sollects glass as glass. In lag its substance, its surface, its clars, its texture its translucency and its operity.

Coleridge and the Lawyer

Lord Coleridge had a trick when on the banch of sometimes closing his syes and assuming an expression as if wrapped in the most retreshing of alumbers when as a matter of fact he was wide awake and listening. Once when he was sitting at nisi pries a long winded young harrister was opining the case for the complainant. In the middle of the address Lord Cotching apparently dropped off to step. The counsel did not notice it for some time and was just remarking. Our contention is my lord that the defendant said — when he stopped short looked in a blond. Coleridge and the Lawyer the my fort that the detendant said—when he stopped short looked in a blond thirsty way at the sommohant judge and emeulated, Oh,—187 Lord tobridge quietly opened his tyes and inquired in his blandest manner. FOR THE LOVELORN LASS Surgestions Which Will Make Her Less of a Public Nuisance.

a Public Nuisance.

An Inglish woman has been devoting some time to the study of unrequired af fection and its effect upon its victim and her friches. In these days, when idiotic daments are committeling suicide and writting pushimistic books bucause the objects of their devotion do not care for them, the decertion that eternal love is temporary and that nunhanging pain may be correll. and that unchanging pain may be cure in a few months is a healthy one. This i what the sensible English woman say about the cure.

The great thing to start with is a de-

It is right to suffer they consider so they do it. Believe me the pain of unhappy love is of the enture of a nervous head do to believe me the pain of unhappy love is of the nature of a norvous head ache—by imagination it may be realized. The next conedy is absence. Many many words have been written for and against absenct, but in my opidion it is the deadlest of all orentes to live. Then come time and work about which I fear, most pursons are tired of thearing. As regards time, I often think of Miss Au ten's few half ironical words at the end of Mansfiald Park. I purpose by abstain from dutes on this occasion that every one may be at liberty to fix his own aware that the cure of unconquerable passions and the transfer of unchanging at tachments must vary much as to time in different people. I only entreat everybody to believe that the structural that it should be so and not a week earlier.
